Cynthiana's soldiers are stateside

The 149th Vertical Construction Company has completed its most recent tour in Afghanistan and is now stateside in Texas, according to family members.

Family and friends still have not been notified when the soldiers will return to Cynthiana. However, they are anticipating a pre-Christmas reunion.

A welcome ceremony will be held at the Altech Center at the Kentucky Horse Park upon their return. This will also be the first time the soldiers are reunited with family.

Parade still on at press time

It may be an abbreviated version of what would have been if the Christmas parade had taken place last Saturday, but as of Tuesday afternoon, the plan was for Cynthiana to have a parade.

Pat Grenier, director of the Cynthiana Chamber of Commerce, said Tuesday that the annual parade will be held at 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 14, unless the Chamber board decides otherwise at its meeting at 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Grenier said the problem with rescheduling is that so many people involved with the parade have conflicts with other events.

"As of right now we're trying to make it work," Grenier said. "We're trying to work without full commitment from many of the parade entries."

She said even the high school band has other obligations for this Saturday.

If the board decides to cancel the parade, it will be posted on The Cynthiana Democrat website at www.cynthianademocrat.com and on the Cynthiana Democrat Facebook page.

Six defendants admit guilt

Guilty pleas entered by some while others begin pretrial phase

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

The nine jury trials that were originally set for Tuesday, Dec. 10, were dealt with prior to the trial date.

Some of the trials were continued while other defendants changed their pleas to guilty, according to court documents.

Steven Hall entered a guilty plea to an amended charge of first degree complicity to trafficking in a controlled substance (drug unspecified) first offense.

His formal sentencing will be held Jan. 7.

The jury trial for Janet Hall, Steven's wife, was cancelled. A new pretrial conference was set for Dec. 17 in Harrison Circuit Court.

Toni Rae Thompson also changed her plea to guilty on a charge of first degree trafficking in a controlled substance (cocaine). A persistent felony offender charge was dismissed.

Her formal sentencing is Dec. 17.

A four-year sentence was imposed on Daniel Perez, who entered guilty pleas on charges of receiving stolen property, first degree fleeing or evading police, operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol/drugs.

In addition to the four-year sentence, Perez was also ordered to pay $200 fine, court costs and DUI fee, to attend ADE school and to surrender his license for 30 days. Probation was denied.

The jury trial set for Steve Price, who was indicted in September multiple charges, was cancelled. A new pretrial conference was set for Dec. 17.

CARVING HIS OWN NICHE

Kelat man turns blocks of wood into works of art

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

Watching Donald Hill shape and shave unformed blocks of wood on the lathe into something beautiful in his Silver Road workshop, it's easy to understand the famous quote from the Italian sculptor Michaelangelo. "Every block of stone has a statue inside it and it is the task of the sculptor to discover it."

It is equally true in Hill's approach to woodcraft, though Hill is blessed with the humility to dismiss the Michaelangelo quote as pre-tentious.

"I just like working in wood," he said.

He would rather point out the unique qualities of the grain that he sees in the raw wood itself. In a piece of maple that looks no more interesting than a random block of firewood, Hill notes the erratic black line of bacterial growth that developed because water got trapped inside the wood.

Bacteria that would be the source of deadly rot in a tree becomes, in Hill's hands, an eye-catching feature that he will emphasize in the piece he is carving.

Hill also loves combining wood species. He picks up a tea light holder that he made recently, points to the contrast of the oak grain against smaller pieces of Brazilian walnut or cherry worked into the fine grooves in the oak that he created just for them.

At a recent trip to a wood working shop in Lexington, Hill said he was inspired by the work of another artist. He began crafting beautiful wood bracelets out of pure Red Heart, several of which he has given to his wife, Stella, as a gift.

Throughout Hill's home are numerous examples of his endless creativity. He does not contain himself to any one type of project. He has made plates, rolling pins and all manner of children's toys.

Some of his most prized works are the elaborate bowls in which he has preserved the fragile features of the bark, cambium and the delicate lace formed from the knots, natural imperfections of the hardwood.

All these things Hill loves to discover when he is working on a particular piece. These singular imperfections determine if he wants to create a work out of one piece or fashion a larger work from combining several wood species together.

But this talent for wood-working is not something he spent a lifetime developing.

Even though his father, Andrew Hill, was a carpenter

Sheriff's deputies logged several wrecks during slippery weekend

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

According to the Harrison County Sheriff's Department, the spike in car accidents during the ice storms Friday evening and Sunday morning was far less than anyone expected.

Forecasts for last weekend's blast of ice storms had a lot of first responders braced for hazardous road conditions throughout the county, Harrison County Sheriff Bruce Hampton said.

Freezing rain arrived about 3 p.m. as commuters were preparing to go home for the weekend.

Between 3:30 and 4:30 Friday afternoon, deputies responded to four car accidents that occurred in rapid succession throughout the county.

The first call came in at 3:36 p.m. on U.S. 27 about eight miles outside of town. Ira Brock's car hit a slick spot in a curve and slid into an embankment.

Roughly 30 minutes later, Shane Ishmael was taking a curve on US 62 when the ice sent his car off the road.

A two-vehicle collision was reported on Republican Pike just minutes after Ishmael's accident. Hope Foster of Carlisle, KY was heading east when she lost control of her car. The rear of her vehicle slid into the oncoming lane in front of a car driven by David Stasa.

The last vehicle accident received that evening occurred just after 4 p.m. There were no other accidents reported that evening.

The next bout of severe weather that occurred on Sunday morning brought with it an overturned vehicle. Terry Rigdon was driving a Dodge Caravan on KY 356 about 7:15 a.m. when snow and ice covered roads forced the car into a head-on collision with a tree.

The Caravan came to rest on its side.

Fortunately, nobody was injured in any of the accidents covered by sheriff's deputies over the weekend.

Deputy Sheriff Robert Peak said that the office expected far more accident reports. Despite the flurry of accidents that came with the start of rain, drivers apparently adjusted to the hazardous conditions and took it easy.

"We've had more reported accidents on a spring or summer weekend. It was a relatively quiet weekend," Peak said.

Cynthiana Police Sgt. Wilbur Gross received his sixth Governor's Award for Impaired Driving Enforcement in Louisville on Dec. 3.

Sgt. Gross honored for DUI enforcement

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

One in three Americans will be impacted by a drunken driving crash in their lifetime, according to the National Highway Traffic Administration (NHTSA).

On Dec., 3, Cynthiana Police Sgt. Wilbur Gross, a 20-year veteran of the force, earned the Governor's Award for Impaired Driving Enforcement. Gross had 18 DUI arrests between October 2012 and October 2013.

This is the sixth time Gross has earned the governor's praise. The previous two years Cynthiana Ptl. Michael Kiskaden held the honor.

Dec. 13 will mark the beginning of the state's "Driver Sober or get Pulled Over" campaign. As a recipient of the on-going traffic grant, Cynthiana participates in statewide traffic awareness programs.

The holiday campaign will continue through Jan. 1, 2014.

Gross said that road checks will be conducted during the campaign period, December through January.

"Impaired driving is not an accident -- it's an epidemic of careless disregard for human life," Kentucky Office of Highway Safety (KOHs) director Bill Bell said. "These officers, their departments and agencies render a great service for public safety by removing drunken and drugged drivers from our roads."

Last year there were more than 5,750 alcohol-related crashes in Kentucky. Those resulted in 146 deaths and more than 3,000 injuries, according to a press release from the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet.

Charly Blankenship was scheduled for trial by jury on Dec. 10. Her trial was cancelled and a new pretrial conference was set for Dec. 17.

She is charged with five counts of criminal possession of a forged instrument, four counts of second degree criminal possession of a forged instrument and knowingly exploiting adult over $300.

Jonathan Patrick changed his plea to guilty on a charge of second degree trafficking in a controlled substance first offense.

His formal sentencing will be held Jan. 21.

Della Hogg will be sentenced on Jan. 7 on her guilty pleas for two counts of possession of firearm by a convicted felon and two counts of receiving stolen property (firearms).

Her sentencing will be held Jan. 7. A charge of persistent felony offender was dismissed and a pre-sentencing investigation ordered.

Chastity Lonaker also entered guilty pleas on two charges of receiving stolen property (firearms) and theft by unlawful taking.

Mayor says city will remove phone lines if AT&T ignores request

By BECKY BARNES, Editor

Cynthiana Mayor Steve Moses said a conduit of phone lines is causing a major blockage in the city's storm drain at Pike and Church streets.

The mayor said AT&T bored through the city's storm drain to run its lines.

He said he has made numerous attempts to get someone from AT&T to address the issued, however, his communication with the company has been ignored.

"So either they come and get it or we'll remove it," Moses said.

Moses asked city attorney John Lair to write a letter to AT&T advising that they had 30 days to rectify the issue or the city could take care of it.

Commissioner Jack Keith asked if removing the lines would impact any city residents' phone service.

Moses said it was likely that some constituents would be affected.

"We would work with [AT&T], but they have paid us no mind," Moses said.

In other business, the commission:

- Approved the second and final reading of three ordinances that make text amendments to planning and zoning codes.

- The first amendment deals with swimming pools and requires fence or walls to be constructed around all in-ground or above-ground swimming pools. The pools would also have to be secured with a self-locking gate.

- The second amendment relates to a overlay zones at the Business Park.

- The third amendment makes requirements for the surface in parking, loading or unloading in a business zone.

- Agreed to advertise for a part-time administrator of the Main Street Program for Cynthiana.

- Hired Teresa Biggs as a new part-time telecommunicator beginning Dec. 14.

- Heard Commission Gary Bruner report for an absent Roger Slade regarding salt on hand for road treatment. Bruner said the city has 75 ton on hand.

- Heard Bruner report that due to the wet weather, the city's leaf vacuum would not longer be vacuuming leaves. He said those who still have leaves may bag those and they will be picked up as time and weather permits.

- Heard Cynthiana Fire Chief Jay Sanders report that no information has been made to the arson hotline regarding the fire at the Handy Farm barn.

Anyone with information that may lead to an arrest and conviction are eligible for up to $1,000 reward. That information should be directed to 1-800-27-ARSON or the Cynthiana Fire Department at 234-7158.

- Announced that there will be no Tuesday, Dec. 24, meeting due to the holiday.

- Commissioners wished a Merry Christmas to the community and to the city's employees.

Dragging Cynthiana into the debate on

For the most part, the European teenagers that my wife and I have hosted through EF over the last five years are not very demonstrative when it comes to expressions of national pride.

Josh Shepherd
News Writer

We were told by our regional coordinators to expect this. It is not that Europeans are not proud of their homeland.

Quite the contrary, they identify very strongly with their home country. Particularly during episodes of “The Real Wives embarrassing some US city” which most tend to watch in marathon sessions during the afternoon.

But where most American country singers can make a pretty good living composing an old-fashioned patriotic song, and there’s a seemingly endless market for slapping an emblem of the Star Spangled Banner on a t-shirt or a denim jacket patch, Europeans tend to be more reserved and a lot more cynical.

Except when it comes to their chocolate.

On other subjects, our exchange students are prepared to concede that, maybe, the French or Belgians have the best cooking and, perhaps, there is better skiing in the Swiss Alps than in the Italian Alps.

The subject of chocolate, however, is a source of constant and heated debate. It may sound playful, but it is only a masquerade. It is war. And like any true war, at the end of the arguments that maybe, just maybe, American chocolate is the best.

It is in this arena that there may be hope yet for the future of the European Union for nothing unites my hostdaughters more completely than my suggestion that Hersheys is the superior world chocolate.

The outcry is immediate and their rejection is universal. And as further proof of the error of my ways, they all immediately write emails to their parents requesting care packages of their home chocolate as definitive proof of their chocolate superiority.

I am upping the ante this year with Rebecca Ruth Bourbon Balls and handmade candies from Cynthiana’s own J.J.’s Sweets.

That’s right, I’m taking this debate out of the realm of “USA, USA” and into the heart of My Old Kentucky Home. Everyone wish Josh Jenkins good luck.

But, do I imagine that, this time, I’ll win? That my darling and lovely hostdaughters will concede that Cynthiana chocolate trumps the very best that the Swiss can produce?

I’m not holding my breath.

But each and every holiday season, care packages arrive at my doorstep from all over Europe loaded with contraband Milka and Moser Roth bars and Kinder eggs from Germany, Karl Frazer bars and bags of Salmiakki from Finland, Marabou and Daim brand chocolate from Norway, and from the Swiss: Toblerone, Lindt, Nestle and Ferrero Rocher.

...And I’m proud to be an American...

International Chocolate Superiority

there are no winners, just a declaration of a halt to hostilities. No quarter is given and there is no peace in our time.

Pam and I have two German hostdaughters and one each from Finland, Norway, and Switzerland. Each has declared the absolute perfection of their national chocolate brands.

There is only one moment when my hostdaughters are united and that is when I have the gall to suggest

Angel Tree project gets helping hand

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

The Christmas Angel program, serving a record number of Harrison County children this year, received support from a welcome new sponsor this year — the Cynthiana Wal-Mart.

Vicky Faulkner, program coordinator for the Christmas Angel Program and the assistant coordinator of the Harrison County Family Resource Center, said that the angel program was serving 411 children this year from all age groups.

The recipients of the Christmas Angel program are all students attending Harrison County schools. That is the most important criteria for children to participate.

Last year there were over 390 children who received support through the Christmas Angel program.

Many families, churches, and businesses throughout Harrison County provide tremendous support for the program.

“All the churches sponsor about 20-30 kids each. Harrison Memorial Hospital is always a major supporter of this program, providing gifts for 40 or more kids on the Angel tree,” Faulkner said.

In addition to the children whose names get selected from the tree, there are also numerous private donations of money to cover the needs for the few remaining children, Faulkner said.

Wal-Mart has offered generous support for programs as well. In the last few days of the Christmas Angel program, the department store’s promotions manager, Kim Gaunce, approached Faulkner to see if the company could help complete the project.

Usually in the fall, Wal-Mart sponsors a Fill-The-Bus type program to provide low cost and free school supplies to qualified children. As a unique twist to that program, Gaunce said she had received the backing to launch a “Fill-the-bus” type program to complete the Christmas Angel program.

“We’ve been getting donations of children’s winter coats, hats, gloves, toys and board games enough to make sure every child on our tree received something for Christmas,” Faulkner said.

Wal-Mart donations of gifts to the program have been ongoing since Dec. 1, Faulkner said. The Christmas Angel project comes to a close this Thursday, Dec. 12.

As coordinator of the Christmas Angel program, Faulkner said that she wanted to thank everyone in the community for their continuous generosity over the many years that the program has been in operation.

Carver

From CARVER, front

who made furniture and built houses for a living, Donald helped him but he didn’t take on the work as a professional.

“I learned how to build things, but I didn’t learn to make the kinds of things I do now through him,” Hill said.

Hill’s professional life followed a familiar track. After graduating from high school, Hill said that he got his personal invitation to join the military and he served his time from 1953-55. When he returned home, he spent 38 years as an employee of the Webber’s Sausage Company.

His interest in art came when he and his three boys, Shannon, Jonathan and Dwayne, started experimenting with painting. They would go into the back room and work with the paints.

But this endeavor ended up being too messy and there was an unwelcome odor of paint thinner polluting the house, he said.

Wood burning, on the other hand, turned out to be the perfect outlet for his artistic side, he said.

“I don’t have to keep a big store of paints. I just plug in the wood burner and in three minutes, I’m working,” Hill said.

In addition to his woodcrafts projects, there are also several excellent examples of his wood burning work on display in his home.

He admits to having an obsession with images of covered bridges. He puts them on everything. At the kitchen table, Hill pulls out a collection of toothpicks he bought from Cracker Barrel restaurant.

The toothpicks are the perfect size for him to work in tiny detail and he has a collection that contains images of covered bridges. Some are created from his memories, such as the old River Road covered bridge, the John Hunt Morgan Bridge or the Colville Bridge in Bourbon County.

He has also lifted popsicle sticks from the banality of their existence by using them as a natural canvass for one of his fictional covered bridge images.

Before he gets through talking about one project or another, his wife urges him to talk about another of her favorite pieces. There are many.

In a collection of photographs, he shows the rocking chair that he fashioned to sit like a motorcycle for one of his grandchildren. Remaining true to the woodmaker’s craft, he used large wooden pegs to join the pieces together.

He calls the back room of his house the Outback Gallery “because it’s located out back of the house.” His sense of humor is also manifested in his works.

Among the many impressive pieces on display in the outback gallery is a comfortable looking Adirondack-style chair and stool in what appears to be red cedar. Affixed to the underside of the chair are four vibrating discs he salvaged from an old motel bed, making for one very unique piece of hand-crafted massage therapy furniture.

In terms of his own work as a builder, about 20 years ago, he met a young evangelist from West Virginia by the name of John Marshall. Marshall travelled extensively across the country carrying his message forward. He had a wife and 10 children with him.

Having hosted Marshall’s family during a revival week in Harrison County, the men struck a lasting friendship.

Marshall had bought a used Greyhound bus that had over 70,000 miles on it. Employing his own skills as a builder, Hill built most of the doors and cabinets for Marshall’s retrofitted Greyhound.

“I never charged him a thing for the work. I was glad to do it. John put over a million miles on that bus before moving on to something else,” Hill said.

Hill is currently enjoying his second time as the artist of the month at The Vault downtown. Many of his works and the works of many other talented local artists are featured at The Vault and in the Art Gallery in the Licking Valley Campus extension in Harrison Square.

In fact, the works of art on display are on sale for the holidays. Its worth a trip down to see what excellent holiday gifts.

In the meantime, Hill will be working through his collection of scrap wood, finding something beautiful within a simple old piece of wood.

DANGEROUS WEEKEND ROAD CONDITIONS — Friday night and Sunday morning, the county roads were especially treacherous for some drivers. On KY 356 about 10 miles outside of town Sunday morning, Terry Rigdon lost control of the car he was driving and overturned on the roadway. Fortunately, Rigdon escaped uninjured.

James Smith files as candidate for Cynthiana’s mayor

Local business owner, educator and community leader, James Smith, filed with the Harrison County Clerk on Friday as a candidate for mayor of Cynthiana.

Smith is a native of Cynthiana, co-owner of the Rohs Opera House, employee of Maysville Community and Technical College, and is serving his second term as president of the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

A 1987 graduate of Harrison County High School, Smith went on to obtain a bachelors degree in political science from the University of Kentucky, a masters in teaching from the University of South Carolina, and has done graduate study at Cincinnati Bible Seminary and Morehead State University.

He is a veteran of the United States Army where he served from 1993-1997 in personnel administration. He has also spent over six years in the ministry, serving as senior minister of Mt. Carmel Christian Church and as leader of the Harrison County House Church Fellowship.

Smith has been involved in organizational leadership and training for almost 20 years. He spent six years working as operations manager of the Daniel Management Center at the University of South Carolina before moving back to Kentucky, and Cynthiana, as a trainer for the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet.

He teaches for Maysville Community and Technical College in the adult education program.

He frequently trains and consults for businesses and groups throughout the region. In 2012, his book The House that Richard Built, peaked at No. 2 on the Amazon.com best-seller list for ebooks in the self help/marriage section.

Locally, Smith has been instrumental in reviving the Rohs Opera House with his other partners.

Together, they have expanded the business’ offerings and made the Rohs Opera House a destination for tourists from many surrounding counties and states.

That small business involvement led him to join the Chamber of Commerce board of directors in 2012. He was elected president of the board in 2013 and re-elected for 2014.

“I’ve always had a strong sense of community and love for Cynthiana,” said Smith of his decision to seek election. “My grandfather, Webber Davis, was sheriff here and I believe he instilled that sense of citizenship and duty in me. The community values I learned when earning Eagle Scout in Troop 60 also played a big part. Cynthiana is suffering from the same problems as every rural small town in America, but I see so much potential for revival here. I want to see Cynthiana become the city where my children and grandchildren find opportunity and prosperity.”

While acknowledging the steps the current commission have taken to move the city forward, Smith said he sees his greatest contribution to city government being in the area of planning.

“I’m a big planner and goal setter. I believe like Zig Ziglar says, ‘If you aim at nothing, you’ll hit it every time.’ Cynthiana and Harrison County need a long-range plan for economic and downtown business development and growth. We can’t wait for a big company like Toyota to discover Cynthiana and swoop in to save us. We have to take steps now to position ourselves for the next big economic boom in America. We have to address the quality of our workforce, the condition of our downtown business district and the services we provide businesses that want to grow. We don’t have a plan, in writing, with goals and benchmarks for us to hit along the way.”

Smith said he sees tremendous growth potential in the downtown, in tourism, and in service.

The success of the Rohs Opera House over the last few years is proof that Cynthiana still has the potential to support local business.

If elected mayor, Smith said he hopes to focus his leadership on helping other small businesses succeed.

Smith is married to Paula Smith and resides in the downtown area with his children and grandchildren.

Court wants clarification of P&Z private swimming pool fence regulations

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

The Harrison County Fiscal Court postponed its decision on proposed new regulations from the planning and zoning commission that would require all above-ground swimming pools to be fenced in.

The proposal was one of three new zoning ordinances being given a second reading.

According to the language of the proposed ordinance amendment, Magistrate Jeff Bruner said that the ordinance would require fences or walls to be built around all above ground swimming pools. That language, he said, would include the large portable swimming pools that some families buy at the local department stores.

Bonnie Skinner, administrator for the planning and zoning commission, explained that the ordinance was intended to regulate permanent above ground swimming pools. The kind of swimming pools, she explained, that people install as an enhancement to their property.

The types of swimming pools Bruner mentioned were not meant to be included in the ordinance, she said.

Whatever the intent,

Bruner replied, the language of the ordinance does not make a distinction between permanent above-ground pools and “portable” swimming pools.

According to the proposed ordinance amendment, “Swimming pools above ground shall be required to have a fence or wall, including a self-locking door or gate around the pool or property upon which the pool is located.”

Skinner said that the language of the ordinance was exactly the same as it was many years ago when Harrison County had this regulation on the books. The ordinance was changed, she said, when someone said that pool regulations were set by the state.

This proposed regulation was requested as a child safety measure, she added.

Magistrates agreed that a child safety regulations on swimming pools are a good idea. However, the regulation does not make enough of a distinction about permanent fixtures versus these other types of permanent pools which are not expected to last much longer than a year or so.

“The way the regulation reads, anyone that goes and buys one of these cheap pools is going to have to build a fence around it and install a gate. There are so many of these types of pools, it would be impossible to enforce the ordinance,” Bruner said.

Judge-Executive Alex Barnett said that the county magistrates did not have to adopt this regulation if they didn’t wish too. The city commission adopted all three ordinances, but the county could choose not to approve the measure.

The court was not ready to go that far. They voted to table a decision and requested Skinner add language to the ordinance that further defined the type of above-ground swimming pool that would be subject to the ordinance’s regulations.

Skinner said she would be glad to do that, but it would add a few months to the approval process because there would have to be a new first and second reading.

In other business, the court:

•Approved the Sheriff’s budget and the deputy sheriff maximum amount for salaries for 2014.

•Approved the County Clerk’s budget and the deputy clerk’s maximum amount for salaries for 2014.

•Approved a budget transfer for the County Clerk.

•Approved the employment of Sherrie Schwartz as a part-time deputy jailer. Schwartz’ job description is only as a rider in the transport of certain prisoners as required by the state.

•Erin Gaunce was hired as a full-time Assistant Animal Control Officer.

•Lease agreements have been signed with the Frazer LeBus Co. for office space rental if the courthouse undergoes renovation. Rent has been paid for the next eight months, Barnett said.

•Approved the second reading of two other text amendments to zoning ordinances as proposed by the planning and zoning commission. The ordinances covered overlay zones for the Cynthiana-Harrison County Business Park and the addition of Rural Business Zones to regulations concerning the design and layout of off-street loading and unloading areas.

Thanksgiving through the holidays

By Mike Barres
Here we are between Thanksgiving and Christmas. Thanksgiving really applies to both.

In Psalm 100, the psalmist reminds us to “Enter his gates with Thanksgiving in our hearts.” In 1 Thessalonians 5:18, Paul says, “In everything give thanks.”

Thankfulness helps us to see life in a brighter light. We often focus on our problems and what we “don’t” have. If we were to make a list, of all that we do have, for which we should be thankful, life would appear a lot better to us.

As we think about Thanksgiving, the name of the holiday is a message in itself.

If we are truly thankful, we’ll want to give: giving thanks leads to other forms of giving. Jesus reminds us, “Freely you have received, freely give.” (Matthew 10:8)

The woman who brought the alabaster jar of perfume, and poured it on Jesus’ feet after she had washed His feet with her hair, brought a very valuable gift. She did this because she was so thankful for Jesus’ love and forgiveness. (Luke 7:37-38; Luke 7:47-50)

We have so many reasons to be thankful. We have been so blessed. Our thankfulness for these blessings should make us want to give.

My son went with me on a mission trip to Guatemala when he was 8 years old. I had given him some spending money for souvenirs. When he saw the poor children and realized how little they had compared to what he had, he walked up to one of the children and gave the child his spending money.

If we are thankful for what we have, we should want to help out those who are in need and keep in circulation the Lord’s blessings. I think it is a way to give back to the Lord. Jesus tells us that when we do it for others, you are doing it unto Me. (Matthew 25:31-46)

When we realize that God is the source of all of our blessings — financial, physical, and spiritual — then it is easy to give with thanks.

If we don’t realize that He is the source, we may try to hold on to it in fear that we’ll lose it. I hope that this Thanksgiving and Christmas we’ll be both thankful and giving.

Mike Barres is pastor at Cynthiana’s Calvary Assembly of God Church.

Daylight after the fog lifts

Recently, a local church pastor stopped by the newsroom to talk about depression — his.

He had just come through a second bout of it and thought it was important to tell people that Christians and Christian pastors are not immune to it.

It’s not a character thing; it’s a chemical, brain thing, he said.

He called his depression a “dark night of the soul.” It made him tired and unable to eat, doubtful of God’s love for him, although not God’s existence.

He said he felt guilty getting up and preaching on Sundays, encouraging people when he felt discouraged.

Things were dark, but he was never suicidal, he said.

I told him that a few years back I had gone through something that might be depression, although for me it was never a dark pit of hopelessness, but more like a constant, dulling fog.

I was sad, sort of, but I didn’t cry. Instead, I’d go to Wal-Mart a lot and push a cart around, thinking about buying pajamas because what I really wanted to do was go to bed.

Maybe it wasn’t true depression. Maybe it was depression-lite. Depressionish. Not enough to check myself into a hospital but enough to feel like I was in a fog and unable to see clearly, feeling out of sorts and out of touch.

Depression-lite isn’t as obvious as a dark night of the soul or the black hole that swallows some people, but it’s real nonetheless.

According to the World Health Organization, depression is the second most common cause of disability after cardiovascular disease and is on-track to be number one within 10 years. As many as 25 percent of people in the U.S. will experience some form of depression during their lifetime.

Mine lasted about a year. During that time I had a hard time getting to church. I’d get into my car and try to get to a particular intersection. If I made it that far without turning around I knew I could make it into the building, and if I made it into the building, I knew I’d stay.

However, more often I wouldn’t — couldn’t — make it to my regular spot down front. I’d sit somewhere way in the back, praying to be invisible.

A Christianity Today report said depression is “in part a withdrawal by the weary into an inner world, an attempt to create a protective cocoon against real-world demands.”

That’s how I felt as I still went to work, still wrote my column every week, still told you all about God’s mercy and grace, still believing it was true, just not quite feeling it through the fog.

Years ago, we lived on the Monterey Bay in California, where the summers are foggy and cold. Sometimes it would stay foggy all week.

One time I had to drive through fog that was so dense I could barely see, which was quite scary. All I could do was stay behind the car in front of me with my eyes fixed on its taillights, praying all the way.

After about 10 or so miles, the fog lifted — and I was never so happy to see daylight.

During the Monterey summers, when the fog would finally burn off I would grab towels and sand toys and head to the beach with my girls. We’d wade through the tide pools looking for crabs, watch the sea otters on their backs in the water cracking open abalones on their bellies or watch people hand gliding over the bay.

I rejoiced when the fog lifted. I loved the feel of hot sunshine on my face and bare arms. After days on end of grayness you forget how good it is to be warmed by the sun. You forget that there could be anything different, anything better. You forget that the sun is always there, above the gray and the cold, damp mist.

However, I never completely forgot, and neither did the pastor who came to see me. That’s because God never leaves his children without hope, never leaves his children alone, even when it feels like it.

The psalmist cried out to God in his distress and God sent thunder and lightning, hurled spears and reached from heaven deep into the deepest pit, pulled him out and set him safely in a “spacious place” because “he delighted in me” (Psalm 18).

In the deepest darkness, in the thickest fog, even in depression-lite, God is still there, still able to save, still holding out hope, still loving his own.

Deer runt or Wiley coyote

It's 3 a.m. and Finca the Great Pyrenees is barking in earnest outside our bedroom window.

When you have livestock guardian dogs you learn quickly when a bark really means something. In my sleepy stupor I am thinking it is deer but I got up to investigate to be certain it wasn't anything more menacing to our ewes and lambs.

I neglected to grab my glasses off of the nightstand so ultimately the origin of the raucous noise remains a mystery.

When I turned the spot light on, I saw Finca, who looks like a small polar bear, chasing at a lumbering gate toward something that looked like a dwarf buck with a miniature rack.

Remember, I do not have my glasses on.

The thing that struck me the most was that it seemed as though the intruder was playing a trick on Finca by running circles around a perennial bed.

Finca is a guardian not an attack dog and the other creature seemed to know it.

I say the "other creature" because I am not sure if it was a little runt of deer, which seems unlikely the more I think about it, or a Wiley coyote.

The creature would run around the berm, stop and look back at

Jeneen Wiche

Finca, taunting him in that playful way; and the chase would begin again. It was weird. It only ended in a chase off the property when we let Buck, our old red heeler mutt out of the house. He and Finca partnered in a hot pursuit to rid us of the threat.

I do believe that our dogs have reduced our deer pressure especially during the rutting season as bucks chase does around as they enter into estrus (commonly referred to as being "in heat.") While this may be fun and games for the does and bucks it can sometimes mean doom for our young trees.

As the young bucks are engaged in the chase they are also practicing using their antlers on the trunks of our young trees.

We have young trees all over the farm, so in the past we have been party central for rutting.

We have several different methods in use: We rig protection using heavy tomato cages, chicken wire and tobacco stakes, large nursery pots and anything else we can find in the barn that would create a barrier between antler and trunk.

Our favorite protection method to date, however, comes from our friend Richard Wolford, he calls it "Buck Off."

He uses old tobacco stakes or other similar stakes and props them against the tree like the frame of a teepee; or sticks three groups of two that are stuck in the ground and crossed at the top.

We have learned that if we change the trunk profile of young trees, the bucks don't notice them as desirable rubs.

Basically a perfect rutting tree has a branchless trunk about chest high with a caliper (trunk circumference) of a few inches.

As such, if we camouflage the clean trunk with other branch debris stuck into the soil around the base of the tree we have adequately changed the profile.

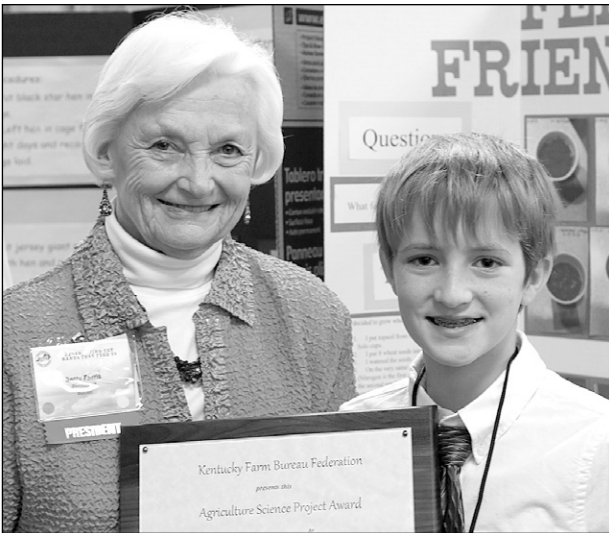

It looks a little funny but it works. Any pruning that you do this fall can be used as a free fence around the base of susceptible trees.

We have also used plastic trunk wraps that loosely fit around the trunk but they do not seem to provide enough of a physical barrier to deter rutting.

Not as much damage to the trunk occurred but it was clear the buck did not notice or care about the wrap.

And, since the addition of livestock guardian dogs on the farm I really do see less deer traffic and rutting pressure so maybe our days of peppering our landscape with lawn chairs, tomato cages and tobacco stakes around trees is over.

Let's just hope that the blurry "creature" we saw tells all his friends that there are dogs on the job at Swallow Rail Farm.

Fry's project featured in KFB's Science in Agriculture displays

A Harrison County fourth grader, Trent Fry, was among the 12 students selected from across the state to display their agriculture science projects at this week's Kentucky Farm Bureau annual meeting in Louisville.

Fry is a student at Southside Elementary. He displayed his project, "Fertilizer: Friend or Foe," to determine which kind of fertilizer best enhances a plant's growth.

Each winning project was awarded $75.00 and a certificate of recognition for their participation at the state level.

The Science in Agriculture program was developed by Kentucky Farm Bureau as a way to encourage teachers to incorporate agricultural themes into their classroom instruction. Projects are evaluated on categories such as creativity, skill, clarity and thoroughness, agricultural accuracy and scientific thought.

LVC offers nursing students OB clinical experience with simulation model

The Licking Valley Campus nursing students are in their obstetrical rotations this semester.

As part of their rotation, they are assisting with the delivery of an infant in the college's simulation lab.

Many times it is difficult to get OB clinical experience due to the time of deliveries and the timing of clinical days.

The college is very fortunate to have a simulation model "Noelle," who can deliver a baby. The students are able to determine the dilation, effacement and station as well as being able to determine the position of the baby.

The simulation model is a valuable tool in teaching the mechanisms and stages of labor.

In the last week of lab for the semester, the students will be doing the newborn care that occurs right after delivery with the infant simulator.

The students will also care for the mom in her final stage of labor, which is right after the birth of her baby.

The required pre-admission conference dates for students wishing to begin the registered nursing program for the fall 2014 are Dec. 12, 12-1 p.m., Jan. 9, 4-5 p.m., and Feb. 13, 4-5 p.m.

The registered nursing program trains students to provide and manage patient care and to become valuable members within the discipline of nursing. Graduates earn an associate degree in nursing and are eligible to take the National Council Licensure Examination for Registered Nurses (NCLEX-RN).

In order to be accepted into the associate degree RN Program, students are required to follow the application and admission process to the college. This includes providing transcripts, compass scores and CPR certification and more.

For more information about the RN program or the LPN program call the college at 859-234-8626 extension 66400.

Madison Central out scraps Breds for Monday win 77-72

Breds win first at Scott

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

The reigning Kentucky state champs showed that hard work and tenacious play is the formula for success Monday night as the Madison Central Indians took a winnable game from the Harrison County Thorobreds, 77-72.

The Thorobreds started the game like they would be the aggressors as senior Dillon Pulliam scored 10 first-quarter points to lead his team to a 15-6 advantage to begin the opening period.

Madison Central roared back with eight unanswered points but the Breds ended the period with six straight to hold a 20-14 lead after one quarter had been played.

After Harrison County stretched the lead to 27-20, the Indians turned up the heat grabbing loose balls and picking up tough rebounds to out-score the Breds 13-4 to take their first lead of the game near the end of the half.

The Breds showed some fight, however, by regaining the lead at 36-33 before a last second three by junior guard Kirkland Humphrey tied the score at 36 each as the half ended.

The third quarter was evenly battled with the two teams exchanging the lead on several occasions before the Thorobreds ended the quarter with a 51-50 edge.

The fourth period was a lesson in how to be the state champ as the Indians went on a 15-4 run to take a 67-57 lead with only three minutes left to play.

The Breds, behind Pulliam and guard D.J. Jenkins, rallied combining for 14 points in the last stanza to cut the lead to two points at 72-70.

Sophomore Zack Pulliam made the three pointer to cut the lead to 72-70 with 29 seconds left but the Thorobreds could not get any closer.

They were forced to foul and the veteran Madison Central team made their free throws for the final 77-72 score.

Again, like at Oldham County, turnovers and free throws hurt the Thorobreds. The Breds, while giving up 34 free throws to Madison Central, had only 16 attempts and made only eight of them.

The Indians on the other hand made 27 of the 34.

The Thorobreds committed 22 turnovers while Madison Central had 15 miscues.

The Thorobreds' defense held Madison Central to 36 percent shooting from the field but the visitors grabbed 35 rebounds to Harrison County's 26 to help their cause.

Madison Central improved to 3-0 on the young season and has now won 15 straight going back to last year.

Junior guard D.J. Jenkins had a spectacular game Tuesday night at Scott High to lead the Thorobreds to a 68-58 win over the Eagles.

Jenkins was next to unstoppable by the slower, more physical home standing Eagles. He scored a team high 27 points along with running the offense for Coach Larry Kendall's Breds.

"D.J. loves to play the game," said the admiring Kendall. "From one year to the next he has made so much improvement it is unbelievable."

Fellow junior Trenton Thompson came off the bench Tuesday night after starting the first two ball games and performed well with a double double.

The tall, talented Thompson had 16 points and 10 rebounds for the night.

Senior Dillon Pulliam also scored in double fig-

Fillies gut out road win at Nicholas County

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

"It was a gut check for the other girls with Jordan (Doram) hobbled and they came through with a good effort," surmised Coach Kim Furnish after the Fillies' 60-52 win at Nicholas County Monday night. "We showed more poise and confidence in the second half when we really needed it."

Senior center Jordan Doram led the Fillies to a 30-24 half-time lead with a splendid 21-point, 10-rebound first half performance.

Only two other Fillies had scored at the half with the 6-foot-tall Doram battling the boards and scoring on put backs for several of her first-half points.

Five of her 10 first-half boards were offensive rebounds.

In the second half Doram went down with leg cramps and had to come out of the game on several occasions for extended periods of time. Last year the Fillies would have folded in this circumstance but Monday night was a different story.

Harrison County was facing a quality foe in district rival Nicholas County on the Lady Jackets home floor, which in a perfect situation is no easy task.

Nicholas County's line up contains probably the top guard in the region in Megan Bretz who threw in 27 points Monday night and they play with great confidence on their home floor.

Bretz was supported by Grace Kiskaden who added 12 points, but the Fillies had better balance and dominated the boards especially in the pivotal second half.

The third period saw Doram's leg problems begin and the Lady Jackets take advantage early in the session.

Bretz scored 11 of her points in this stanza and the Fillies were having trouble handling the ball turning the ball over six times in the period.

A big three-pointer by Chelsea Ingram helped the Fillies maintain a 43-40 lead going into the fourth quarter.

Sophomore guard Madison Philpot along with Ingram and junior Whitney Gray stepped up big in the final period.

Philpot took control of the point guard position and drove the ball to the basket on three or four possessions scoring a basket or getting fouled.

Ingram buried her second three of the half (third for the night) in the fourth quarter along with two free throws and Gray grabbed key rebounds the largest a put back of a missed free throw as she scored five points in the last period.

"After the third period we distributed the ball much more evenly and handled their pressure," noted Furnish. "This is a tough place to play and the girls really stepped up."

Two youngsters who came off the bench with big contributions Monday night were seventh grader Madison Kellione and freshman Emma Darnell.

With Ingram coming off wisdom teeth procedures and Doram cramping up, the two played key minutes for the Fillies in the district battle.

Jenkins resigns as Fillies soccer coach after nine seasons

By Mike Aldridge, Sports Writer

Harrison County is looking for a girl's soccer coach following the resignation of head Coach Kim Jenkins after nine seasons at the helm of the Fillies.

Jenkins' varsity tenure came after 16 years at the Harrison County Middle School.

Her overall record with the Fillies is 75-77-20 having won the last two district championships and finishing runners up in other seasons.

Jenkins notified her team of the decision late last week after careful consideration.

"It was very hard to leave the program but I really felt like it was time," she said. "My focus needs to be more on my family and I believe this is a good decision for them. They are my top priority and it is time for me to pass the torch."

Jenkins' resignation comes on the heels of long-time assistant John Lair's departure from the program, which will leave the athletic department with some big shoes to fill.

"I love the time that I spent with the soccer program and the girls that I have worked with at Harrison County High School," Jenkins concluded. "I appreciate all of the support that the community has given to us and the cooperation that we have received from the administration and the parents over the years."

Emma Darnell goes up for two last week as the freshman Fillies and Thorobreds hosted Montgomery County on the Hilltop. Both teams came away with wins in the double header.

Mike's Minute

College and NFL officials worry me

Before I get into my thought for the week I want to congratulate the Scott County Cardinals, Head Coach Jim McKee and assistant coach Doug Hampton.

What a thrill it has to be for Jim to coach his oldest son and Doug his grandson to a state football championship. The entire Hampton, Palmer and McKee families must be as proud as they can be.

I have watched more college and professional football in the past few days than usual due to Patti being out of town (no supervision) and the lousy weather keeping me inside.

I will begin by saying that I am not a big fan of the replays, especially the inconsistent way that they are administered.

Before replay the officials were at a disadvantage of sorts when it came to questionable plays since the TV viewer and even the uninformed commentators had the television cameras for an aide.

It always amazes me how many times the play by play and color men will make a comment about the rules and be completely wrong. But that is off the subject.

Now with the replay seemingly on every other play, one would think that there wouldn't be any controversy from game to game.

However, just in the last few days there have been several

Mike Aldridge
Sports Writer

calls, two in the Bengals' game Sunday that were very questionable.

In fact, one of the CBS halftime personalities suggested that the referee in the game "needed to find another profession."

One of the calls gave a touchdown to the Bengals and the other did not penalize the Bengals' quarterback for intentional grounding.

On the touchdown call, the referee looked at the replay and still reversed the call on the field. In order to reverse a call, the evidence is supposed to be without question, which was certainly not the case.

On the other, he just announced that the quarterback was in the pocket while it was clear that he was not.

In another pro game on Sunday, the side official pointed to his behind and then the ground to say that the runner's butt was on the ground before he fumbled.

When the defense asked for a check of the replay the officials got together and announced that the runner's forward progress was stopped and it was not something that could be challenged.

If his forward progress was the reason that the fumble could not be allowed then why point at the ground and your behind?

In the college games on Saturday there were several occasions where the replay appeared to overrule the call on the field but not one time did the officials change the call.

It appeared that they were not willing to admit that there could have been something missed.

None of us like to admit that we are wrong, but when the game is changed and replays added to try to eliminate errors as much as possible, then the officials need to be willing to accept the facts.

After all, it has been only a few years when the NBA was rocked by an official being put in jail for game fixing and betting on games.

When officials seem to not be willing to "get it right" then people can be suspicious.

Let's hope that more games are not influenced like the ones last weekend.

ures with 10 points as he became the ninth all time scorer in Harrison County history.

Scott High jumped out to a 13-2 lead early and it looked as if the Breds were in shock but they righted the ship and roared back to tie the score at 19 each at the end of the first quarter.

After a couple of baskets were exchanged to open the second period, Thompson's three pointer gave the Breds a 24-23 lead and, though the Eagles tied the score at 24, the Breds would never trail again. Harrison County led by two at 40-38 at the half.

Scott High junior guard Blake Schneider had 22 of his game high 28 points in the first half to lead his team.

After the half, Grant Carr and his teammates defended Schneider much better limiting him to the six second-half points. Schneider fouled out with almost four minutes left in the contest.

The Thorobreds took an immediate five-point lead to start the second half on a Jenkins' three and the Eagles never got closer than three after that.

Harrison County led by seven points a couple of times in the third stanza including the end of the period when the score was 57-50.

The Breds stretched the lead to 11 in the fourth quarter and made enough of their free throws down the stretch to win by the final 10-point margin.

Free throws were again an issue as the Breds made 15 of 25 for the game but only five of 11 in the fourth quarter. Harrison County shot better from the field than Scott High and also out rebounded the home team.

Harrison County was 25 of 48 from the field for 52 percent while the Eagles made 18 of 40 for 45 percent. The Breds grabbed 25 rebounds to 23 for Scott High.

The win makes the Harrison County record 1-2 with a Friday date at Covington Holy Cross followed by a Saturday adventure at St. Henry.

The loss evened the Scott High record at 2-2.

Wedco District Home Health Agency named as prestigious 2013 HHCAHPS Honors recipient

Wedco District Home Health Agency has been named a 2013 Home Health Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Providers and Systems (HHCAHPS) Honors recipient, a prestigious award recognizing those home health agencies that provide the best patient experience.

Established by Deyta, this annual honor recognizes the top 20 percent of agencies that continuously provide the highest level of satisfaction through their care as measured from the patient's point of view.

HHCAHPS Honors acknowledges the highest performing agencies ranked by analyzing satisfaction measures covering both performance and improvement of care over a twelve-month period.

Deyta used the HHCAHPS survey results from over 1,200 eligible home health agencies contained in its HHCAHPS database with an evaluation period of April 2012 to March 2013.

Two domains of performance were used in the calculations covering the 19 questions that comprise the five publicly reported HHCAHPS measures found on Home Health Compare.

Qualifications for eligibility included those HHAs that were compliant and partnered with Deyta for the evaluation period.

"We are excited to honor these outstanding home health agencies," said J. Kevin Porter, president and CEO. "Their tireless work has made a real difference in the lives of their patients, and we look forward to acknowledging their excellence."

Crystal Caudill Miller, public health director, Wedco District Health Department and Home Health Agency, credits the strong leadership in this program as well as the work ethic, loyalty and dedication of the staff within the Wedco District.

She said, "We focus on the development of human capacity on all levels because our staff is the nucleus of our organization. Focusing our efforts on leadership as well as recruiting and retaining highly skilled individuals with strong work ethic, loyalty and dedication to serve the patients in each of our communities is what made Wedco a staple in our communities."

The Harrison County Farm Bureau was recognized for outstanding membership and program achievement during the recent 94th Kentucky Farm Bureau annual meeting in Louisville. Jennifer Yazell, center, accepted the award from David S. Beck, right, Kentucky Farm Bureau executive vice president, and Brad Smith, executive vice president of Kentucky Farm Bureau Insurance Companies, during a Dec. 6 recognition and awards program.

Ashley Dunaway, chair of the Harrison County Farm Bureau Women's Committee, right, accepted the 2013 Women's Gold Star Award of Excellence from Phyllis Amyx, chair of the Kentucky Farm Bureau state Women's Committee, left. The award was presented during a Dec. 6 recognition program at the 94th Kentucky Farm Bureau annual meeting.

Mary Hixson, FCS Agent, Garrard County, Rep. Tom McKee, Benita Peoples, FCS Agent, Harrison County, Dr. Ann Vail, Director, School of Human Environmental Sciences.

McKee named honorary member at KEAFCS awards luncheon

The Kentucky Extension Association of Family and Consumer Sciences names Rep. Tom McKee as its 2013 Honorary Member. The honor was presented at the KEAFCS Awards Luncheon at the Embassy Suites in Lexington by Harrison County FCS agent Benita Peoples. He was nominated by Dr. Ann Vail, Director of the School of Human Environmental Sciences.

McKee's lifelong commitment to agriculture, community and Extension is in alignment with the principles of KEAFCS. They are exemplified in his concern for, not only the people he represents, but for all people and in his belief that it is his responsibility to give the best of his ability to educate and advocate for farming, farming families and the right of all families to be able to access healthy and affordable foods. He accepts opportunities to empower individuals, families, and communities and has a willingness to meet the challenges of the changing times with innovative ideas and legislation.

McKee's partnership with the University of Kentucky has been instrumental in the success of the first Family Impact Seminar, "Building Strong Families for Kentucky: Partners in Food and Health" sponsored by the School of Human Environmental Sciences. In his commitment to the project, he co-signed the invitation cover letter encouraging all Legislators to attend.

He serves on the Farm to Food Bank committee which attempts to improve the health of all Kentucky people by making Kentucky fruits, vegetables and other farm products available to at risk and low-income families. He is a leader for Kentucky agriculture, educating those in the Kentucky House and Senate about hunger, food distribution, accessing food and making Kentucky farmers profitable.

High school choir gets a unique educational experience at Disney

By JOSH SHEPHERD, News Writer

In addition to performing for visitors in Disney World's Epcot Center last Friday night, two singers from Harrison County's High School Choir made it through auditions to perform solo at the American Idol experience at Hollywood Studios Park on Saturday.

The HCHS Choir escaped the oncoming winter weather when they left for Orlando on Wednesday afternoon. The timing could not have been better, Michelle Hassall, choir director, said.

The high school choir took 30 singers to participate in the Disney Candlelight Processional at Epcot Center.

The processional is a regular feature throughout the holiday season at the Epcot World Showcase park.

Beginning after Thanksgiving and continuing through New Year's Eve, the processional is a typical Disney extravaganza featuring music and a celebrity narrator reading the story of Christ's birth.

For the choirs that participate, the experience is an education.

Hassall said that the Harrison County contingent was just a small section of the full processional choir. There were about 300 singers involved, she said, including several Disney employees who had to audition for a place in the processional.

There is also an eight-person ensemble called the Voices of Liberty who are full time performers at all Disney events, Hassall said.

The Harrison Choir performed in two of the three shows that Disney held on Friday night. In addition to performing, some students got to meet the evening's celebrity reader, actress and comedian Whoopie Goldberg.

Several hours before it was time for the performance, the choir went backstage to eat and get ready.

"It is interesting to watch how everything is organized," Hassall said.

Disney's staff took the choir through about an hour of rehearsal, then sent everyone back to be outfitted for robes.

"It's like a well-oiled machine back there. They get us all ready to go without any hassles or delays. We just do what they tell us to do and it all falls into place," Hassall said.

As a reward for participating, the choir members received passes to all of the Disney parks.

Two of the Harrison County choir, Taylor Ray and Victoria Lalley, participated in the American Idol experience at Hollywood Studios park the next day.

"This was a fascinating experience. People go through an acapella audition, then a few are chosen to go on and perform live for an audience. They get vocal coaching, hair and makeup treatments, then go on stage to perform. The audience chooses who goes ahead in the rounds," Hassall said.

Some of the daily winners at The American Idol Experience are eligible for a "dream ticket" that would put performers to the front of the line at an actual "American Idol" audition, Hassall said.

"The American Idol experience was quite an educational experience. It was very involved. Plus, in addition to all the goings on, our singers got to meet Candice Glover, last season's American Idol winner," Hassall said.
